If It Won't
Help, Don't Say It

The telephone rang — it was a Hope woman who wanted to talk to the editor.

She had been deeply moved by the picture we printed on the front page last Tuesday (Wednesday on the rural mail) of troops of the U. S. 24th Infantry Division retreating through the snow in North Korea. It was a heartbreaking picture. She questioned the propriety of our printing it, but laid the war blame on "the folks in Washington."

Our friend identified herself (but I've already forgotten the name), said she was planning a letter to the newspaper "burning the folks in Washington" — but she wanted the letter kept anonymous. I talked her out of it.

We do sometimes publish letters without disclosing the writer's true name, although the actual signature is in our files — but on thinking it over I don't believe this woman or anyone else would want to say something in print about our national government in an emergency and yet refuse to put name and address to it.

If the writing and the thought behind it is important enough to be printed these days everyone is also entitled to know who wrote it.

I know how that local woman felt. Every now and then all of us are overwhelmed by a sense of disaster and despair — and there is a temptation to relieve yourself with a bitter outburst. But don't put it in print.

If it won't help, why say it if the record?

Nevertheless, I am going to tell you what this woman said she's afraid is happening to our country. I can summarize it here because I am also going to point out where I believe she is wrong. She's afraid the United States is going to be "drawn into a major land war in Asia, until our fighting men are killed off, and America is bled white both of men and money. That picture of U. S. troops retreating through Korean snow was, to her, the forerunner of complete disaster.

On December 21 (mail edition dated December 21) I discussed the foreign situation in this column, under the heading "Europe Obviously Looking Out for No. 1," which I still think constitutes an answer to most of this woman's fears.

We're fighting what is known as "a little war" in Korea, but if Europe double-crosses us because of fear of a major war over there we still won't let the Asiatic business grow into a major conflict. The Navy and Air Force will have a job maintaining our position in Japan and the Western Pacific islands, but U. S. troops are never going to fight a major war in China — I don't know a single American citizen who thinks differently.

We're in trouble — but so is the whole world.

And we've had adventures and bad breaks like the Korean war, before.

After the war with Spain the United States presumably won title to the Philippines — just as we won title to Korea at the end of the Japanese war because of Japan's generation-old occupation of Korea. But there was a native Filipino named Emilio Aguinaldo. Aguinaldo in 1898 set up a provisional government at Manila in defiance of us — and for the next three years American troops were getting shot and killed while hunting Aguinaldo's guerrillas up and down the mountains of the Philippines. As a youngster I knew an old ex-sergeant of U. S. cavalry, a Jew named Herman Landau, who went through that dirty and bloody Filipino campaign.

Nor did we end that Filipino war in glory, either. Aguinaldo was captured in 1901. The man who captured him was U. S. Brig.-Gen. Frederick Funston, who years later, just before World I, preceded General Pershing in command of our campaign against Pancho Villa in Mexico.

The circumstances surrounding the capture of Aguinaldo blighted Funston's military career. It was said, but never proved, that Funston invited Aguinaldo to a conference under a white flag — and then grabbed him. America squandered the account by turning Aguinaldo loose, and later giving the Philippines their full independence — but General Funston never went anywhere in a military way thereafter.

Those were dark days, too, a generation ago — for the war in the Philippines was to the America of then about as big as the Korean war is to the America of now.

That is, if you exempt the Chinese from the picture in Korea — and we do.

We're not going to fight the Chinese on their own ground, either now or in the future — regardless what we hear, or may think in some despairing moment.

Coldest Wave Since 1917 Hits Arkansas

Little Rock, Dec. 7 — (AP) — The coldest weather since 1917 chilled northeast Arkansas last night in the wake of yesterday's snowstorm.

Fayetteville recorded seven degrees below zero, the coldest weather anywhere in the state since a "minus seven" temperature in Fayetteville in 1917.

The Little Rock weather bureau said the coldest weather of which it has any record in Arkansas was 21 below in 1892. Its records do not show where that temperature was recorded.

Clearing skies brought a bright sun over most of the state today, but little relief from the current cold wave is expected before tomorrow.

The weather bureau said Little Rock, which had a low of 15 degrees last night, would warm up to about 30 degrees today. However, a low of 16 degrees is predicted for tonight.

More fair weather — and warmer — is forecast for tomorrow.

Snow, ranging up to the four inches at Berryville still blanketed most of the state today, but conditions upset by the first snowstorm of the season, gradually were returning to normal today.

The state highway department said all roads are open, but many are "slick in shady spots." Motorists were advised to use extreme caution.

The weather apparently caused no serious disruption of public utilities or communications. The cold caused gas service to some industries at Conway to be curtailed, but an Arkansas Louisiana gas company spokesman said it was "nothing serious."

Low temperatures were general.

Three Arkansas Newsmen Die This Week

Little Rock, Dec. 7 — (AP) — J. Will Hill, 69, member of the Arkansas Democrat editorial staff for 40 years, died at a Little Rock hospital this morning.

A native of Little Rock, he was the son of the late Pulaski County Judge Wilbur Hill.

Hill served as telegraph editor and city editor of the Democrat and for the past 20 years was an editorial writer for the paper.

Before joining the Democrat, he was with the Arkansas Gazette.

He is survived by his wife.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Two other veteran Arkansas newspapermen died Wednesday.

William A. Worrick, 86, who joined the Marshall Mountain Wave as a printer in 1897 and later became its co-publisher, was found dead in bed. He retired last year.

John Milton Drummond, 70, who founded the Stuttgart Arkansasyer since consolidated with the Daily Leader, died at Stuttgart after a long illness.

To Exploit Diamond Mine for Tourists

Articles of Incorporation have been filed for a new corporation, "Diamonds Unlimited, Inc.," the original incorporators being Robert Dale Plant and Henry Kelsie Holland, of Murfreesboro, and Talbot Field, Jr., of Hope.

Mr. Field, who is also attorney for the new company stated:

"The formation of the corporation Diamonds Unlimited, Inc., is one of the first in a series of projected steps being taken so that people within and without the state may visit and see the only place in the Northern Hemisphere of this earth, where diamonds occur in their matrix."

"Preparations are to be rapidly carried forward in order that not only the people of Arkansas but people everywhere may soon view the ancient crater site where the best quality of high grade diamonds known to man have been found."

"Arkansas is known as the Diamond State and has the diamond in the State Flag. Of the thousands of diamonds recovered, approximately 11,000 have been reported. The largest weighed 40 and one-fourth carats. The stones are harder than those found in South Africa, South Wales, India and Brazil. They are absolutely perfect and equal the finest stones found at the Jagerfontein mine or that were ever found in India."

"Yet since the first diamonds were discovered in Arkansas forty-four years ago by John Huddleston visitors have not consistently been welcomed at the mine. And certainly this unusual phenomenon of nature, this wonderful divine blessing has not been extensively publicized."

"Over five million tourist visitors."

Salvation Army Drive Progressing

The Salvation Army Campaign for funds which was begun some few days ago is progressing very nicely according to Albert Graves, the Chairman.

Mr. Graves stated that while only about $700. had been turned in to date that about one third of the workers on the drive had not reported on their work yet and it is hoped that when they have reported the amount will be enlarged somewhat. The Schools will take part in the drive for funds this week and next by placing small envelopes in the hands of the students to take home for their donations, and when the workers that have not reported yet have finished and turned in their work to the treasurer Mrs. Alicia Jones at the Welfare office it is hoped that the amount will be much larger.

Mr. Graves stated that the mail appeal conducted some few weeks ago and the work of the solicitation campaign workers so far had netted approximately $1,200 toward a $2,000 quota, and that any who have not yet contributed that would like to have a part in this campaign for funds for this very worthwhile organization should make their checks payable to The Salvation Army and Mail to Mrs. Alicia Jones at the Welfare Office in Hope.

Retreating Americans Find It Hard to Fight Impulse to Destroy Everything

By HAL BOYLE

Seoul — (AP) — One of the last Americans to leave Red Pyongyang had to fight back an impulse to burn down the city hall.

He is Col. Charles R. Munske of 2718 Avenue K, Brooklyn, military governor of the North Korean capital. He had spent six weeks organizing a new civic government for Pyongyang and restoring the transport system and water and power supply.

Then in a few hours last Sunday the colonel rather ruefully saw the fruits of his six weeks of hard work go up in smoke and debris as American demolition engineers blew up the repaired bridges and power stations.

But Munske was in full accord with the American army policy of leaving nothing behind that would be of any help to the Chinese Reds.

"When I went into my office in the city hall for the last time to burn my papers," he said, "I felt like turning over the stove and burning down the building. But I didn't have the heart to do it."

That was Monday morning. The city appeared empty of all allied military personnel except for British rear guard troops and the 20 members of his own Eighth army civil assistance team.

"There was no rioting or looting — everything was peaceful," the colonel said. "I had kept 1,000 city policemen behind to keep order, but then I decided it was time to let them take their own escape."

Tree Planting Underway in Hempstead

The tree planting season in Hempstead County got underway Monday, December 4. The tree planter, made available by the Hope Chamber of Commerce, and operated by Foy Hammons made the first planting on Mrs. W. M. Stroud's farm in the Rocky Mound Community. Mrs. Stroud will plant about ten acres this year.

According to John Keck, this is the first mechanical tree planter to operate in Hempstead County on a commercial basis, and should have great significance in view of the fact that the timber industry plays a big part in the economy of the county. There are many idle acres in the county which should be put to work producing timber, not only from an economical standpoint but from a land use and erosion control viewpoint as well.

Interested farmers and landowners who want to see the planter in operation are cordially invited to visit the farms on which trees are being planted. The public will be kept informed as to where the planter will be operating so that anyone interested may see the planter in operation.

Beginning Monday, December 4, the planter will be working for Mrs. W. M. Stroud, Rocky Mound Community; Graydon Anthony; J. P. Owens, Ray McDowell, Stephens Community.

Inquiries relative to the use of the planter or obtaining trees may be made at the Chamber of Commerce or the Soil Conservation Service office.

Service Men From Hope Assigned

Clarence L. Walker, seaman recruit, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Walker of 303 West 4th Street, has recently completed basic training at San Diego and will now join the fleet or be assigned to specialized training school.

Another local man, Snow E. Bush, fireman, USN, is now serving aboard the USS Bayfield, at sea transport, and took part in the landings at Wonsan and Inchon, in Korea.

Lions Club to Recondition Old Toys

Hope Lions Club has appealed for old discarded toys which will be reconditioned and passed out to needy children during Christmas. Manual training classes at the high school shops will recondition the toys.

Local citizens are asked to bring toys to Luck's Station on South Main before the end of this week.

Retreat Halts, Yanks Brace for Enemy; U. Forces Join in North

Tokyo, Dec. 7 — (AP) — Allied troops braced on a new hill defense line 25 miles south of fallen Pyongyang today for a stand against steadily advancing vanguards of a million-man Chinese Red expeditionary force.

The line stretched in a line 70 miles in northwest Korea from the Yellow sea. It was a defense in depth on commanding heights and not a solid line.

The U. S. Eighth army, with its long and bitter retreat at a halt, was greatly outnumbered and hard hit but still was a unified fighting force.

The Chinese armies in front of it were estimated at 100,000 men with up to 80,000 combat reserves behind those Reds and hundreds of thousands more in Korea or moving up from Manchuria.

The Eighth Army force on the defense line is something less than the 110,000 men Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker had when he was forced to retreat late in November.

Northeast of the new line, U. S. marines and doughboys battled in a blizzard in a dogged effort to break out of Red traps south of the Changlin reservoir. They broke out of one and have to fight through another.

Underlining the critical situation of the United Nations forces near the reservoir and elsewhere in the northeast was the withdrawal of the American garrison from the east coast port of Wonsan.

A bombardment by three U. S. destroyers and shore fire by South Korean marines covered the pull-out of Wonsan. Presumably the American garrison at Wonsan was relatively small. It was not identified.

Wonsan was captured Oct. 10 by South Korean troops. The same day, Chinese troops landed at the port. Oct. 15 after a week-long sweeping of a minefield offshore. Because the port already had been secured, the marines called it "operation what-the-hell."

Hamhung and its nearby port of Hungnam, 50 miles north of Wonsan, now becomes the Allies' main escape route in the northeast. It is more centrally located for the widely scattered units of the 10th corps.

The new line in the northwest is 65 miles north of Seoul, the Korean Republic's capital, and is 58 miles north of Parallel 38. General MacArthur described it as arching from the east coast port of Chinnampo to Kosen, an island town 53 miles southeast of Pyongyang.

There was no explanation as to why the line was so far north.

More realistic observers pointed out that Wu Hsiu-chuan, leader of the Chinese Communist delegation here, told the security council last week that his government will not recognize any decision taken by the U. N. so long as it is not given a seat in the world group.

Russia's veto of the withdrawal proposal in the security council. Russia's attempts to keep it off the assembly agenda, Russia's derision of the 13-nation appeal to the Chinese Communists to halt at the 38th parallel — all were taken as concrete evidence of the low opinion the Moscow-Peking axis holds of the demand.

Wu announced beforehand he would not take part in discussions on the Korean question — where he and Russia insist only Chinese "volunteers" are "fighting to defend China."

But he is expected to be on hand when Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky seeks priority in the committee for Moscow-Peking charges that the U. S. is an aggressor against China in Formosa.

We heard a series of explosions and then what sounded like the constant firing of small arms. We could hear projectiles going over the building or falling on the road like big hailstones.

"I rose and dressed. Then there came two tremendous blasts and flying glass cut most of the men."

The second blast threw Munske and one of his officers — Lt. Bruce C. Fisher of Asheville, N. C. — off their feet and out into the kitchen. It also turned over a gas stove and set the living room on fire. The men beat out the flames, covered the stove with blankets and tossed it outside.

Fearing the weakened building might collapse, Munske led his detachment on foot out through the danger area. They shivered for two hours outside a Korean home.

"The night was lit with showers of sparks everywhere," the colonel said. "Chunks of metal as big as a shoe were falling in the darkness. Windows were crashing and whole fronts of buildings were caving in." The explosions continued intermittently until 8 a. m. but the group returned to their billet as soon as the main blast ended.

"Luckily none of our vehicles had been hit," Munske said. "But the building was pockmarked with scars and the whole area looked like a junkyard."

In the midst of the jagged metal debris lying in the yards rested a blackened and unexploded 90-pound artillery shell. "I don't know how many casualties there were," said Munske. "All I saw was the body of a dog."

Gold to Learn Price He Must Pay

Philadelphia, Dec. 7 —(P)—Harry Gold, small, timid seeming chemist, is to learn on this ninth anniversary of Pearl Harbor what price he must pay for helping betray his country's atomic secrets to Soviet Russia.

The 39-year-old Swiss born Philadelphia has admitted that he acted as courier for Dr. Klaus Fuchs, leading British atomic scientist who confessed turning over vital nuclear secrets to Russia.

Gold has pleaded guilty to violating the wartime espionage act. He could be sentenced to death or to long imprisonment. He appears today before U. S. District Judge James McGranery.

A court official said last night the doors to the court will not be opened until 9:55 a. m., five minutes before the start of business and will be closed as soon as seats are filled. The official said this will be done as a precaution against any possible disturbance.

Gold's sentence is the first item on the court's agenda.

Gold was arrested May 23 and since then has reportedly talked freely with FBI agents, detailing the history of his betrayal. He was the first American arrested for atomic spying. Since then several others have been seized. They allegedly were identified by Gold as fellow couriers.

Judge McGranery wanted to sentence Gold in October and only grudgingly gave in to the federal prosecutor's request for a delay.

Since then, Gold has testified as star witness at the trial of two people he identified as former confederates.

They were Abraham Brothman, engineer and Miriam Moskowitz, a business associate of Brothman, who were tried in New York. Both were convicted of perjury before a federal grand jury.

French Push for Anti-Red Fighting Force

Paris, Dec. 7 — (AP) — France pressed today for an anti-Communist army in Europe, bolstered by German manpower, and named one of her top generals to head wavering French defenses in Red-menaced Indochina.

The cabinet announced it will call a meeting of the West European nations in Paris during January to draw up plans for an Atlantic Pact European army. The announcement confirmed that France had agreed to immediate formation of West German combat teams in the Atlantic force.

For the Far East, France named Gen. Jean De Latre De Tassigny as high commissioner in Indochina, with "full military and civil powers" to direct the war against the Communist-led Vietnamese. De Latre De Tassigny, who has er's Prayer closed this part of the meeting.

Gifts were then distributed. Mrs. Willie Ed Waller won the traveling prize for the best Christmas arrangement.

The guests were invited into the dining room where Mrs. Kenny McKee presided at the coffee service. The serving table was decorated with pink magnolia leaves and pink burning tapers. The buffet was also decorated in this manner.

Enjoying this meeting were 11 members and 2 guests. The guests were Miss Clarice Cannon and Mrs. Willie Mae Ramsey.

Communists Seek Time to Answer

Washington, Dec. 7 — (AP) — The Communist party has filed a plea for more time to answer Attorney General McGrath's demand that it register under the new internal security law.

The subversive activities control board (SACB) reported today it has received a petition from Gus Hall, national secretary of the Communist party. U. S. A., asking a 60-day extension of time in which to reply.

McGrath, through William A. Paisley, a special assistant to the attorney general, filed an immediate objection.

Unless more time is granted, the deadline for the Communist party reply is Dec. 24 — 20 days after Hall and William J. Foster, another party leader, were served notice by registered mail of McGrath's registration demand.

"The gravity of the issues raised by the attorney general's petition and its serious effects upon the democratic liberties of the American people and upon the constitutional structure of our nation require that the most serious and deep study be given to the legal and constitutional questions involved," Hall's petition said.

"In such a case the selection of counsel becomes more than a routine question."

Hall went on to say that the Communist party had not yet hired attorneys. And even if counsel were engaged immediately, he said, it would be impossible to "investigate properly the grave and constitutional questions involved" in so short a time.

Paisley, replying for McGrath, contended that:

"Hall's motion is unsupported by affidavit and is otherwise insufficient to justify the delay sought."

2. It is in the public interest that the proceeding before the SACB should go forward speedily.

been serving as commander of infantry in the joint general staff under the Brussels pact, will take over the duties of both civilian high commissioner Leon Pignon and Gen. Marcel Carpentier, now in command of French forces harassed by Ho Chi-minh's Nationalists.

Today's announcement was the first official disclosure that France has withdrawn her insistence on delay in forming German combat units until a unified defense ministry has been created.

Information Minister Albert Gazier said the decision was an emergency measure providing for a "transitory" phase in European rearmament. France still hopes to see the unified defense ministry set up eventually.

Faced with strong opposition at home to the idea of a German army, French political leaders have until now opposed putting arms into the hands of any Germans before a unified European army is formed.

It is believed the darkening crisis in Korea has made the French more aware of the urgency of rearming Europe at once.

DOROTHY DIX Mother's Boy

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married for three months. We started out fine. We bought nice new furniture and set up housekeeping for ourselves and for the first week we were happy. Then he decided he wanted his mother and couldn't live without her. I thought that he would get over his homesickness, but, no matter how hard I try to make things pleasant for him, he still wants to go back to mother. And now he says he doesn't love me any more. He only loves Mother. I told him that if this was the case we had better break up housekeeping and he could go to his home and I'd go to mine, but he complains that this will make a scandal, and that the only way out is for him to commit suicide. I love him and am willing to sacrifice my happiness for him.

MRS. R. N.
Answer: Your husband is a pathological case and you should take him at once to some good psychiatrist and let science clarify his muddled emotions. Perhaps a psychiatrist can make him see that the two loves, the love of mother and wife, do not conflict, but each has its place in a well-ordered normal life.

Talk To Mother-in-Law

In the meantime go to your mother-in-law and have a frank talk with her. She is the key to the whole situation. Make her realize that her son's excessive affection for her is not only wrecking his happiness but is driving him insane, and ask her to cut her apron string and set him free.

If she has courage enough to do this and to make her son realize that his life no longer centers about her but about his wife and that his greatest love should be given his wife instead of to her, and especially if she has wisdom to shut up her house and go away for a while so that there will be no mother's home to go to and no mother to run to with a tale of everything that has happened to him, all will be well.

He will learn to do without mother and to depend upon you for the babying that Mother gave him. He will come to think of the house he has set up as his home and begin to take an interest in it. In a word, he will get weaned. And he will find that all of his love for you has come back.

The reason that he thinks now that he has ceased to love you is because his love for his mother is fighting against his love for you, and somehow whichever one is away from him has the strongest claim upon him. If he should go back to his mother, he would die for love of you.

Dear Dorothy Dix: A short time ago I married a wower much older than I am. He does nothing but talk of his first wife and sing her praises to me, her wonderful cooking and beautiful figure. Also he tells me what wonderful presents he made her, but he has never purchased me even an engagement ring. As a matter of fact, he did give all he possessed to this paragon, who left it when she died to their only child, a married son.

who treats his father like dirt but has him completely under his thumb. We can't even take out the automobile without first asking the son's permission.
Do you think I married a senseless fool instead of a man?

SUSAN
Answer: You certainly have, Susan. Any man who ever mentions his first wife to his second wife at all has so little intelligence that he should not be allowed out in public without a keeper.

It is incredible that any man could be so dumb as not to know intuitively that a second wife is inevitably jealous of the first wife, who was her husband's first love to whom he gave the freshness of his youth and his romance. He may be better to her than he was to his first wife. He may be kinder, more generous, more considerate, but there is always that little unacknowledged pang because she wasn't the first choice, and what she is getting is warmed over love and rehearsed affections. Surely it does seem as if a man with any sense of the fitness of things should know without being told how second wife is bound to feel about his first wife, and he might at least preserve a decent silence concerning her estimable qualities.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Will you please tell us how old a girl must be before she is called an old maid?

A GROUP OF GIRLS
Answer: Oh, I'd say a woman must be at least 50 in these days before people would begin to consider her an old maid. Up to 35 she is a girl. After that she is a girl bachelor. After that she is a spinster.

Price Line on New Cars on Upsurge

Detroit, Dec. 6 — (AP) — The price line in the automobile industry was caved in today at two major points.

Ford had followed General Motors with a boost in car prices. The two increases approximated five per cent or more.

Higher costs and materials shortages figured in both actions.

Only Chrysler of the industry's "big three" had yet to announce its price intentions. Chrysler's 1931 model cars came out in January. Thus the auto industry, a vital part of America's economic pattern, had all but give up in the attempt to "hold the line."

Previously, several smaller independent auto makers had boosted prices.

GM was first to announce its increase yesterday. Ford followed soon afterward. GM said its increase was "something less than" five per cent. Ford's averaged 5.7 per cent.

Both companies blamed higher manufacturing and labor costs.

At the same time a threat of large-scale layoffs impended in the face of materials cutbacks in the defense program.

Ford said it might have to lay off 42,000 men by next March because of government-ordered cuts in aluminum and copper for civilian use.

Both General Motors and Ford pointed out these were their first price increases since 1928.

Each cited higher materials costs within the last year.

GM mentioned as an example a 200 per cent increase in the cost of rubber.

Ford said that since last June its costs had risen at a rate of $100,000,000 a year. The rise has been "rapid" within the last 60 days, Ford said.

The CIO United Auto Workers assailed GM's action as "unjustified and unnecessary."

President Walter Reuther issued a statement calling on the government to take "decisive action" against "runaway inflation" for the protection of the people. He made his statement after GM's announcement and prior to Ford's.

For the first nine months of this year General Motors had record net income of $702,655,150 on its cars and other products.

U. S. Group to Check on Food Distribution

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Dec. 6 — (AP) — The first American team here to insure equitable distribution of U. S. food relief said today it expected also to check on distribution within Premier Marshal Tito's army.

Tito's army is to be fed by a $18,000,000 allocation from the mutual defense assistance program. U. S. Ambassador George Allen told newsmen the aid was planned as a stopgap between harvests — not for storage in mountain strongholds against possible Cominform invasions.

Allen said the observers — from the economic cooperation administration (ECA) staff in Paris — would make spot checks, following the shipments from ports of arrival to consumption points, even in remote mountain villages.

Gunmen Eyed for Possible Other Jobs

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 6 — (AP) — Six Chicago gunmen accused of a brush Mississippi gambling club holdup are being eyed by police of three states plagued by similar and unsolved night club capers.

News of the arrest and description of the holdup of the Ken-Club, near Byhalia, Miss., stirred official interest in Kentucky, Indiana and Kansas.

The six heavily armed hoodlums were arrested by Tennessee highway patrolman yesterday at the Colony Club, a Tennessee roadhouse of uncertain reputation north of here.

They were identified as Wilbur Chapman, 39; Henry Brogato, 37; Eugene Cameron, 35. Richard Kay, 27. Carmen Jannace, 23, and Tom Utley, 29. All gave Chicago as their home, except Utley, who said he was from Evansville, Ind.

Four money bags and a pillow case stuffed with bills and silver were found in their car, along with a small arsenal of weapons.

Patrol Captain W. E. Crawford said the men collected the same $12,000 from the kennel club Monday when they took it over and held it four hours, robbing customers as they drifted in.

The six — typed as "freelance woods" by Chicago police — were put under $15,000 bond each on federal charges of illegal possession of unregistered firearms.

Mississippi charges against the men were not filed. But L. A. Smith, Jr., Marshall county attorney, said he planned to prepare warrants charging armed robbery, punishable by death in Mississippi.

The leader of the men, identified as Cameron, a paraplegic who gets around on aluminum crutches, shouted "double cross" under questioning and involved Colony club owner James R. Red Nix and his employee, George Roberts.

Nix and Roberts, arrested on an open charge, were freed under $5,000 bond each. No formal charge was made. Both denied any connection with the men or the robbery.

HERE'S GOP '52 CANDIDATE—The gent pictured above was created by taking photographs of the five men most prominently mentioned for the Republican presidential nomination in 1952 and superimposing them to make this single composite. The men were Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio; Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York; Sen.-elect James H. Duff of Pennsylvania; Gov. Earl Warren of California and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. The result seems to be the portrait of a solid, substantial citizen who might well be the embodiment of Republican conservatism.

Council to Act on Requested Expenditures

Little Rock, Dec. 6 — (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative council was scheduled today to act on requested budgets of the resources and development commission and the University of Arkansas.

Yesterday the council reduced some of the requests submitted by the state health department and the Arkansas Confederate home among others.

Final action is up to the 1951 legislature.

Reductions voted in the health department included a cut of from $6,000 to $5,000 yearly in the salary of Dr. T. T. Ross, state health officer. That's in the state's share only. Part of the health officer's salary is paid from federal funds.

The council approved requested budgets of $100,000 for the Arkansas Boys industrial school and $57,500 for the girls' training school and voluntarily recommended an increase from $42,313 to $44,113 for the Negro girls' training school so a nurse could be employed.

Frau Koch Denies All Charges

Augsburg, Germany, Dec. 6 — (AP) — Frau Ilse Koch broke into tears today for the first time in her trial on charges of inciting murders and atrocities in Buchenwald concentration camp.

The calm she has maintained throughout six days of nerve-racking testimony about Buchenwald atrocities broke as the chief judge turned to her suddenly and demanded:

"Do you still maintain that you have never seen any mistreatment of prisoners?"

"Never," she wailed, bursting into tears.

"Have all these witnesses lied, then?" the judge insisted.

"Yes," she snapped, recovering her composure.

Referring to a Catholic priest who had testified against her, the judge continued: "And this priest also has lied?"

"Yes," she insisted. Murmurs of protest rose from the crowded courtroom.

"I have a clean conscience," Frau Koch declared, "my memory is excellent."

One prisoner, Josef Christian, had just told the court he and a Jewish prisoner encountered Frau Koch in the Buchenwald camp. Despite Christian's warning, the Jew stared at Frau Koch's plump figure — which, according to witnesses, she often displayed in thin and scanty clothing.

Frau Koch noticed his stare and called a guard. Both prisoners were beaten, and the Jew was then sent to a "punishment group" where he soon died.

The presiding judge, George Mayhott, said today that he has received many letters — both from Germany and abroad — demanding that Frau Koch be put to death, which can be given her, however, is life imprisonment. West Germany has abolished the death penalty.

University Likely to Get Request

Little Rock, Dec. 7 — (AP) — The Arkansas Legislative council may approve a $4,750,000 operating budget for the University of Arkansas for each of the next two fiscal years.

Apparently the council was on the verge of taking that action yesterday when attention was called to the fact that a quorum wasn't present.

A motion for approval had been made by Rep. Lou Christian of Sebastian county and had been seconded when the lack of a quorum was suggested. Several of the members who were present had said they favored approving the university request.

Final action on the university budget and all others will be up to the 1951 general assembly.

University President Lewis Webster Jones told the council that $1,600,000 yearly is a minimum requirement for instructional and research needs.

He asked a separate and additional $750,000 yearly for care of indigent patients at University hospital, Little Rock, which is operated by the university medical school.

The $4,750,000 appropriations total would exceed by almost $1,000,000 a preliminary budget ceiling fixed for the university by Congress.

Dallas Taxicab Driver Gets $1000 Tip

Dallas, Dec. 6 — (AP) — Taxi driver D. L. Grizzle felt like a million dollars today — $1,000 of that in cold cash.

Somebody gave him a $1,000 check for a tip. It was on a Chicago bank. That was two weeks ago. Yesterday that check came to the Mercantile National bank of Dallas, where Grizzle banks. The bank announced the good news:

It was a good check. Two weeks ago two men asked Nichols Brothers, Dallas taxicab co., for a limousine to take them to Temple, 130 miles away. Grizzle was the driver.

One of the passengers wanted to find his girl, who lived on a farm near Temple, and ask her to marry him.

The man went inside the farm home and came out in a few minutes — all smiles. Grizzle drove them to a Temple hotel. The fellow who had won back his girl said: "I'm going to give you $1,000" and he wrote out the check.

Said Mrs. Grizzle yesterday: "We're going to keep some in the bank as a checking account. Things haven't been so good, but now maybe our luck has changed."

Grizzle, 47, said he could not remember the name of the man who signed the check.

"We were so excited when we got the check we can't remember the name," Mrs. Grizzle said. "We took it down to the Mercantile bank, and they handled it."

Baby Sitting on Airplane Is No Fun

By JOHN WHEELER

Airplane Baby Sitter

All the seats in the Eastern Airlines Constellation were filled as we took off from Newark to fly non-stop to Atlanta the other night. Across the aisle was a mother with a baby in her lap. The stewardess served dinner, and we ate with the trays balanced on pillows — that is all except the woman with the infant. Having finished, I called the stewardess and said:

"Tell that lady I will hold her baby if she wants to eat her dinner. It was a gallant gesture, and I confess I was a little surprised when she took me up and handed over the child."

Everything went well for the first ten minutes. My charge sitting on a pillow with a protective covering over it. Then suddenly without warning she I had discovered her sex by asking her mother and her age, eleven months — opened her mouth and let go. You could easily hear the shrieks above the drone of the motors, and passengers began to stare at me as if I were sticking pins in her.

I pulled out some Eastern folders from the pocket in front of me and began to display them without much success. I showed her a copy of the Evening Journal, hoping the funnies might appeal to her, and she quieted down briefly so I thought I had found the solution, and she would grow up to be a bookworm. Then she tuned in again, and I made faces and did everything but stand on my head. Finally the man sitting next to me suggested he change seats with the mother.

"I think she will be better now," said the lady beside me, as she went on eating her dinner.

"Oh, that's all right," I answered. "Maybe she will grow up to be another Ethel Merman."

To keep the situation in hand, I gave her some peppermint, wrapped in cellophane, distributed by the stewardess. These worked better than nambutas. She quieted right down and shortly stuffed the whole package into her mouth without bothering to take the wrapping off. No damage was done. I handed her one of the small candies nude. Meantime her mother was munching her dinner. My charge promptly rammed the dainty in her mouth and was silent until it got stuck to the roof. She shoved her finger in and began to drool.

"I think maybe we can help," suggested the mother. I was ready for any service by now, even a surgical operation. We all put our fingers in her mouth, not at the same time, but took turns. I hope our hands were clean and hygienic. Finally I located the obstruction by probing and pried it loose. This produced another flow that ran down her rubber bib and on my pants.

It reminds me that, according to my mother, I was a free drooler and was what is known as a "sour baby." My wife says I still am.

By this time the lady was smoking a cigarette, having finished her dessert. The child snuggled up to me, and began to doze, while I relaxed, feeling I had been a success. Then it was time to part, so the mother reached for her, and the baby clung to me and began to howl again, as if she had become fond of me and didn't want to leave. The woman scowled a little and looked at me suspiciously, perhaps thinking I might be a reformed kidnapper, who couldn't resist temptation.

The next time I travel in an airplane and see a baby within range, I think I'll be looking out the window. But anyway, my rates were cheap.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1950
By King Features Syndicate.

New York, Dec. 7.—To the great accumulation of proof that Franklin D. Roosevelt was crooked in little things as well as great, I report that he literally stole passages from a book and palmed them off as original composition in an article which, by his own precaution, was not to be published until he was dead. The article was a tribute to the old Cunard Line's Mauretania. Under Roosevelt's by-line, it was printed in the June, 1950, issue of sea breezes, "the ship lovers' digest," an English magazine, with the title "Queen With A Fighting Heart."

The excerpts in question were stolen from a book entitled "Mauretania—Landfalls and Departures," by Humphrey Robertson Jordan, published in London by Hodder and Stoughton in June, 1938. A brief foreword to Roosevelt's piece, in which he affects great knowledge of ships and seafaring, although he never sailed deep water in any other role than that of first class passenger, states that this effort was put together in August of 1936, at a time when Mr. Jordan's book was at hand for consultation and cribbing.

After the June issue of sea breezes had carried the Roosevelt piece with a proud little note celebrating this coup, the August issue of the same magazine carried a letter in the vox pop attributed to one Henry Maxwell, who said he thought Roosevelt "must, I think, have had by his hand, when dictating the article," the Jordan book referred to.

Mr. Maxwell then compared the wording of Roosevelt's story in one paragraph of unusually good descriptive writing with Jordan's earlier work. Roosevelt's piece ran: "To no other ship belonged that trick of hers—that thrust and dip and drive into the sea and through them which would wreck the rails of the 'Monkey Island' with solid sea or playfully spatter salt water on the captain's boiled shirt as he took a turn on the bridge before going down to dinner."

Jordan's version of the same thing had been: "that thrust and dip and drive of hers into the seas and through them, that trick of hers which could wreck the rails of the 'Monkey Island' with solid sea or playfully spatter salt water on a commander's boiled shirt, did not belong to any other ship."

Mr. Maxwell's letter closed with was not the only indication that the late President had "relied on Jordan's book for many particulars and descriptions."

Nor was it. In Jordan's preface this line occurs: "for 22 years she remained the world's fastest liner." Roosevelt put it thus: "for 21 years she remained the fastest liner he (man) had ever piloted."

Jordan: "When she had long ceased to be the largest ship, when after a year's struggle in the ocean she ceased to be the fastest liner, she remained during another five years of hard work, the world's most famous steamship."

Roosevelt: "When she had long ceased to be the largest ship and when, after a year's struggle in the ocean she ceased to be the fastest liner, she remained during another five years of hard work, the world's most famous steamship."

The trivial variations in Roosevelt's plagiarizing are characteristic of this literary crime. Continuing: Jordan: "Neither size nor speed, alone, could have given her fame. That rested on something more secure and more intangible—on her individuality."

Roosevelt: "Neither size nor speed alone could have given the Mauretania her fame. That rested on something more secure and intangible—on her personality—for the M. was a ship with a fighting heart."

Jordan: "She was only known on two of the seven seas. She never crossed the line. She never made a long voyage as long voyages are reckoned. Yet, whenever men go on ships, her name is familiar as the greatest of her kind."

Roosevelt: "The seven seas knew the Mauretania although she never crossed the equator. She never made a long voyage as long voyages are reckoned. Yet, whenever men go on ships, her name is familiar as the greatest of her kind."

Jordan: "She was an inanimate thing of steel but her individuality was so near to personality as to be really living for many thousands of ordinary, sensitive, human beings."

Roosevelt changed one word here. He substituted "yet" where Jordan had written "but."

These deadly parallels were discovered in an incomplete comparison of Roosevelt's text with Jordan's. There are other twigs in Roosevelt's counterfeit which strongly suggest that on detailed inspection the enormity of the fraud would be aggravated.

Racing Has No Plans in Event of War

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The billion-dollar horse racing industry was told today there are "no known plans to date" to curtail the sport in event of war.

Doubtless remembering the complete shutdown of the sport from late in 1944 to May, 1945, Donald P. Ross, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations (TRA), yesterday told members in his annual report:

"TRA is endeavoring to insure that is not singled out from other sports and forms of entertainment as a target for some useless curtailment which contributes nothing to the defense effort."

Under the heading "war situation" Ross said in his report: "With the war situation in Korea and the general stepping up of national defense measures, it is to be expected that racing will be affected, as will all normal activities. Racing will not shrink its war-time responsibilities x x x The board of directors has had this matter under consideration since July, 1950."

Since then Spencer Dryden, head of the TRA Protective Bureau, has spent considerable time in Washington acquainting proper authorities with racing's position and in order to be kept informed concerning all developments which might affect racing. In view of past experience a careful watch will be kept on developments in Washington and all executive orders which might lead to unwarranted restrictions will be anticipated wherever possible.

"In the recent national production authority restriction on construction of places of entertainment, racing was not singled out but the restriction affected all sports and amusements."

This is in line with TRA's thinking that racing, insofar as national restrictions are concerned, belongs in the same broad category with all sports, amusements and entertainment. Through the TRA racing will be able to formulate plans as rapidly as policy in Washington becomes crystallized.

Exclusive of the NPA's restrictions on construction, there are no known plans in Washington to restrict racing.

The two-day meeting ends tonight with the TRA's annual dinner.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Wherever you go along the sports beat, but especially around the colleges, you hear talk of war and military preparations. That's just as true elsewhere on this anniversary of Pearl Harbor, but college sports will be among the first seriously affected. If present plans concerning the draft remain unchanged, the athletic directors will be out of business, possibly by next fall. A committee of college presidents already is at work trying to develop some plan whereby their student bodies won't be virtually wiped out—it isn't just the athletes who are concerned. One committee member, Virginia's President Colgate W. Darden, recently indicated that his hopes for another football season were none too bright. At St. Bonaventure, where most of the athletes are enrolled in a ROTC artillery unit, Father Silas Rooney, the athletic director, was even less optimistic about their completing their campus training.

"The army doesn't want them here, it wants them in camps," he said. At the eastern conference meetings, athletic directors set spring schedules with the press season get-together with the Army coach was solemnly explaining the use of air power in football terms. "In war, as in football, you can't win unless you have a strong line," he said.

What Price Advice? Jack Gray, Texas U. basketball coach, tells this one on his pal, Ed Price, who has just been named Texas head football tutor. A few years ago Price, coaching the freshman baseball team, had a good hitter who was notoriously careless on the bases. When the kid reached first, Ed sent a coach to warn him to stick close to the bag. The player almost was picked off. Price sent word again and the same thing happened. Finally Ed called time and marched out himself to tell the boy to stand right on the bag until the ball was hit. Before he got back to the bench, the player was picked off first.

Shorts and Shells Jack Solomons, the London fight promoter, is bidding for a June match between Lee Savold and Jack Gardiner, the new British empire champ. Solomons says it would draw better than Savold vs. Bruce Woodcock, but Lee's manager, Bill Daly, is holding off.

Another Plant Is Located at Little Rock Little Rock, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Yoder Manufacturing company of Los Angeles has acquired the plant here of the Scott Paper Box company and will use it for fabrication of plastics and light metals including Arkansas aluminum for automotive and hardware specialties.

Yoder was described as a $1,300,000 a year enterprise employing 100 persons. Announcement that the company was taking over the Arkansas plant was made by the Arkansas Resources and Development commission.

Violent Deaths in Arkansas Total 12

By The Associated Press

Violent and accidental deaths in Arkansas since Monday had reached 12 Thursday.

Henry Thomas, 27, of West Ridge, died at a Jonesboro hospital Wednesday of burns suffered in a house fire which killed his two children Tuesday. Only his wife survived.

Dr. George Brown, 61-year-old retired physician of Tyrone, died when a motorboat capsized in a floodway near Marked Tree Wednesday. It wasn't immediately determined whether he drowned or died of a heart attack brought on a plunge into the icy water.

In Amity, Herman Garrett, 39, former deputy sheriff and father of five children, shot and killed Mrs. Katherine Dorsey Simpson, 19, a waitress, and then killed himself. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder and suicide.

Earlier in the week, six other persons died as a result of traffic accidents, a stabbing and a fall.

Boat Tips Four Into Water, One Dies

Marked Tree, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Dr. George Brown of Tyrone, Ark., died yesterday when a motorboat dumped four duck hunters into the icy water of a floodway ditch near here.

It was not known whether Dr. Brown, 61, was drowned or died of a heart attack brought on by the icy plunge, which occurred during a swirling snowstorm.

Three other men—Robert Bradley, Paul Sharfer and Bill McNabb, all of Marked Tree—reached safety. They were treated for shock and exposure.

At 3 p. m. around a long table, with their staffs.

After each day's session the White House has issued a brief statement, known as a communiqué, on what happened.

This communiqué hasn't revealed very much. Maybe the two men will give out a statement after they've finished their talks.

It's a bit of an understatement to say there'll be quite a lot of interest in anything they care to report.

After the Monday and Tuesday conferences reporters got a brief fill-in, in connection with the day's communiqué, from Charles G. Ross, presidential secretary who handled the press for Mr. Truman.

But Ross, former newspaperman and old-time friend of the Truman's from their days in Missouri together, died suddenly of a heart attack after his Tuesday conference with the press.

The Wednesday night fill-in was handled by Stephen Early, whom Mr. Truman called in to help out. Early had been press secretary of President Roosevelt for years but is now in private business.

Neither Ross nor Early has revealed very much. No one expected them to, since anything released piece a meal on the conference might be of big help to the Russians and Chinese in making decisions of their own at a time when the Chinese are fighting the United Nations troops in Korea.

But the British haven't been idle. Their press relations in Washington have been very smartly handled now for years. British press relations people gave newsmen a fill-in every day.

Some reporters closely covering the conferences complain that the British have been more helpful than American press relations men.

Attlee leaves the White House by a side entrance after each conference to avoid reporters and they haven't tried to buttonhole him. Trying to buttonhole the President, of course, is out of the question.

So the world will probably have to wait till the conferences end to see whether Mr. Truman and Mr. Attlee will provide anything like a full explanation of the decisions they've reached.

Heads of Two Nations Take Little Time

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—One of the astonishing things about a meeting between the heads of states is the little time it seems to take them to decide the most important problems.

President Truman and Britain's Prime Minister Attlee have been meeting here every day since Attlee arrived by plane from London Monday.

There probably has never been a more important meeting between an American president and a British prime minister, even in World War II.

What these two men decide to do about the crisis with communism may change the fate of the world.

You might think the two men would want every possible minute together to talk over their problems, which are plenty.

You can almost imagine Attlee staying with the Trumans, sitting up till the early hours talking things over, and even leaning against the bathroom doorway in the morning, still talking, while the President shaved.

It isn't being done that way. When Attlee arrived, accompanied by a couple of Scotland Yard detectives, he was whisked off to the British embassy where he's staying on his visit here.

And so far the President and prime minister have conferred together officially for four hours and 25 minutes in three days.

They met in the cabinet room of the White House on Monday from 4 p. m. to 5:35 p. m., and again from 3:30 p. m. to 4:35 p. m. When the sat down to talk over their problems they were flanked by their assistants, such as Secretary of State Acheson and the British ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, plus their military or economic advisers.

On Tuesday the President had the prime minister aboard the Williamsburg for a roast beef lunch with a few congressmen and senators along. The lunch lasted from 1:20 p. m. to 2:35 p. m.

Then the congressional delegation cleared out and the President and prime minister went to work sessions they've reached.

Carr, 30, will succeed Johnny Antonelli, last season's manager. A catcher, Carr managed Harlan, Ky., to the Mountain State league pennant and playoff championship last season.

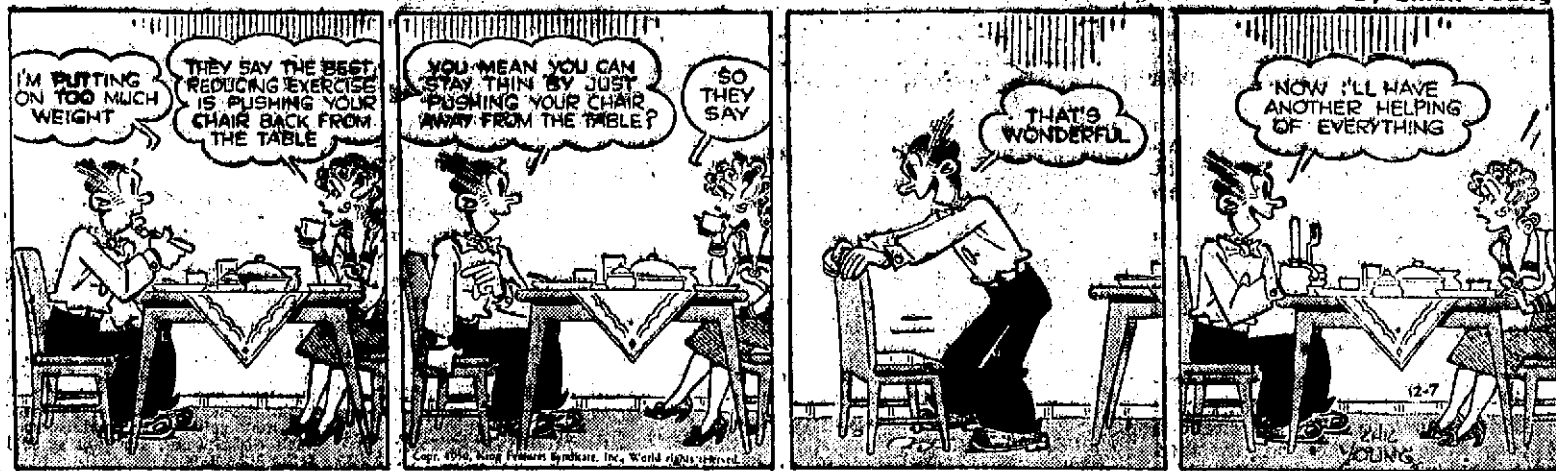

Hot Springs, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Rex Carr, a minor league veteran, will be next season's playing manager for the Hot Springs Bathing of the Class C Cotton States league.

The Hot Springs Sentinel-Record reported that Carr was named by owner Herbert W. Anderson at the St. Petersburg minor league meeting.

What Price Advice? Jack Gray, Texas U. basketball coach, tells this one on his pal, Ed Price, who has just been named Texas head football tutor. A few years ago Price, coaching the freshman baseball team, had a good hitter who was notoriously careless on the bases. When the kid reached first, Ed sent a coach to warn him to stick close to the bag. The player almost was picked off. Price sent word again and the same thing happened. Finally Ed called time and marched out himself to tell the boy to stand right on the bag until the ball was hit. Before he got back to the bench, the player was picked off first.
